POLES MOURN RULE LIVES ON

Three Possible Successors: Foreign Minister Beck and Premier Slawek Take Helm

WARSAW, May 12. - Marshal Pilsudski's death tonight cast the entire nation into mourning and

President

Ignace Mo-

dered preparations at once for the "grand old

a state fu-

for Wednes-

The entire cabinet went to the marshal's

palace

shortly be-

Thursday.

WALERY SLAWEK.

fore midnight to pay the official homage of the nation.

National mourning was ordered and a bereavement message by the President at the "loss of the greatest man the country had" was ordered read in all army

Flags were lowered to half-mast and theaters and all amusement houses closed until further notice.

The government is in strong hands with Premier Col. Walery Slawek and Foreign Minister Col. Josef Beck dominating.

Speculation concerned itself with the fact that a new "dictator" might turn out to be one of three men, the new Marshal and Inspector-General Ward Rydz-Smigly, known to be Pilsudski's confidant and "strong man" of the army; Foreign Minister Beck and General

JOSEF BECK.

MAN OF DESTINY

DICTATOR; HIS Pilsudski's Career an Epic of Exile Who Rose to Power

Gave Chance

IMPRISONED IN SIBERIA AND GERMANY

(Copyright, 1935, Universal Service, Inc.) WARSAW, May 12.—(U.S.)—Unlike other dictators of Europe, Marshal Josef Pilsudski, who died tonight, was a professional soldier.

It was as a soldier that he welded Poland together.

He served his life in the army, was an exile in Siberia and later a German prisoner of war and he funeral of finally saved Poland from anarchy. Poland's His career was rich with devotion beloved to his fatherland.

Pilsudski was born on December 5, 1867, at Zilow, Vilan province, son It was re- of Josef Pilsudski and Marie Billeported that wicz, of noble lineage. He studied medicine at Kharkov University in neral would Russia, and as a result of illegal be ordered anti-Czarist activities was exiled by the then Russian overlords of Poday or land to Siberia.

Guerrilla Fiahter

After five years in Siberia he came to Warsaw and founded with others the Polish Socialist parts. He was again imprisoned by Czarist police, but escaped and organ-ized a Polish volunteer military force in Krakow, carrying on guerrilla warfare against the Russian

In August, 1914, Pilsudski's force joined with the Austrians in attacking Russia. All Polish units acknowledged Pilsudski as leader in 1917, and when the marshal refused to swear fealty to the central powers he was arrested.

The German revolution resulted in his release and he again returned to Warsaw in the blood-red month of November, 1918.

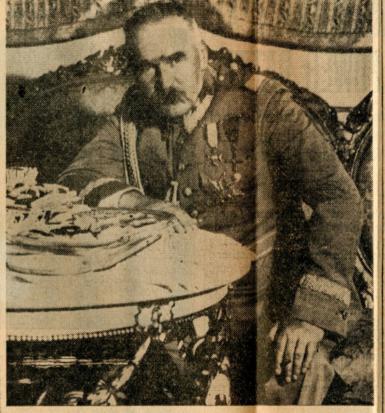

Seizes Reins

Pilsudski assumed supreme power and had the constituent assembly (Sejm) confirm him in office. With Paderewski, Poland's great pianist-statesman, aiding at Versailles, the powers recognized Poland's independence. Pilsudski became chief of government as well as chief of the army, and Paderewski served as the first premier of the reborn nation.

As provisional president and army chief Pilsudski led Poland in the war against the Soviets and took Kiev in May, 1929, losing it after a hard siege in June, then taking over the defense of Warsaw before becoming marshal and generalissimo in August.

Married Twice

FATHER OF COUNTRY-Marshal Josef Pilsudski, the Polish dictator, who died yesterday. He was generally recognized as the father of modern Poland.

Although elected by the people.

went, Pilsudski retained control of generally till 3 or 4 o'clock the fol the War Ministry, and was enabled lowing morning-despite his physivirtually to rule the cabinet and the clans' advice.

It was Pilsudski who made the laws and drafted the reforms, who debated the advisability of diplomatic policies and who drew France close to Poland in the post-war years. He was twice Prime Minister and since 1926 had headed Pofand's army-the only man who still wore the "flat cap" of the original Polish legionnaires of 1914.

Pilsudski was a familiar figure in Warsaw streets. He traveled little and, like Stalin in Russia, preferred not to strut.

Lover of Poetry

He loved to walk, and his soldierly bearing belied his 67 years. His secretaries took his dictation while he paced the floor, hands behind his back, his blue eyes thought-

The man who led a nation of 33, 000,000 was a stickler for military etiquette, but he loved poetry.

Mlle. Casimira Illakowics, a fa-When his wife, Marie Juszkle-mous poetess, was his private sec-wicz, whom he had married before retary for many years.

fice as Pilsudski's right-hand man, day, but he never touched liquor He ate moderately, but he worked Although premiers came and from the middle of the morning

Friend of Pope

He was, in many ways, more lik Stalin-whom his nation generally fears-than like Mussolini or Hitler the other dictators of Europe. He rarely spoke in public.

He greeted foreign envoys prin cipally through his foreign minister. Col. Joseph Beck.

Though a lover of the theater, he thought first of his people. rarely attended.

and papal nuncio to Poland, the resurrection of Poland. marshal enjoyed long evenings of philosophical conversation with the man who was destined to rule over the church.

BY CHICAGO'S

Effect of Dictator's Weighed: Nation Lacks Successor, Declares Editor

Grave concern for the future of Poland and the peace of Europe as a result of the death of Marshal Josef Pilsudski was expressed last night by Frank S. Barc, editor of the Polish Union Daily.

Asserting the dictator's death would create an emergency which he feared no successor could meet, he added:

"The future looks dark for Poland and for the whole of Europe. As many statesmen have pointed out, he held the key to the peace of Europe. It is significant that news of his true condition was withheld. His death will add greatly to the general uneasiness of Europe politically."

Informed officially by radiogram of the death of Marshal Pilsudski, Dr. Waclaw Gawronski, consul general of Poland in Chicago, issued a statement notifying all Chicago Poles and expressing deep grief.

CHICAGOANS COMMENT.

Scores of other Polish leaders in Chicago expressed themselves as shocked. Among those who commented were:

ANTHONY CZARNECKI, Former Collector of Customs-He was Poland's outstanding patriot. Prior to the World War he worked incessantly to free his country. His great opportunity came with the war. He was the purest kind of patriot. Poland's constitution, just drafted, was largely his inspiration.

COUNTY JUDGE EDMUND K. JARECKI-Poland has lost a great patriot and leader. I doubt if he can be replaced.

SUPERIOR JUDGE PETER SCHWABA-He was the perfect patriot, a man of genius who

CIRCUIT JUDGE WALTER LA He was a Catholic. When Pope BUY—He lived for the advance-Piux XI was still Mgr. Achille Ratti ment of his people and for the PAUL DRYMALSKI, Member of the Board of Education-Poland has suffered a vast loss. Marshal Pilsudski's great purpose was the resurrection of Poland. He was an idealist as well as a man of action.

CIRCUIT JUDGE STANLEY H. KLARKOWSKI-He was a great statesman, and Poland has suffered a great loss. He helped cement friendly relations between the United States and Poland.